

East African Fiber Optic Communication Major

Overview

Paratus Group has announced the activation of a significant new fiber optic route in East Africa, establishing a direct and resilient connection between Mombasa on the Kenyan coast and Goma in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). The story most diaspora and family office investors hear about East African digital infrastructure is the headline layer — the data centers, the cloud platforms, the AI-readiness narrative. The actual cable in the ground, on. This is a list of terrestrial fibre optic cable projects in Africa. While submarine communications cables are used to connect countries and continents to the Internet, terrestrial fibre optic cables are used to extend this connectivity to landlocked countries or to urban centers within a country. Though tech giants have invested heavily in high-performance digital infrastructure — more cell towers, faster networks — Africans across the continent still grapple with sluggish internet speeds and expensive data. Tech companies such as Google and Facebook parent Meta are investing in new data. Despite being home to some of the fastest-growing economies in the world, East Africa's internet penetration rate remains below 40%, lagging significantly behind the global average of 66. This 2,000-kilometer G2M (Goma-to-Mombasa) fiber route runs. TANGA: TANZANIA and Kenya have officially launched the redundancy route of the National Optic Fibre Cable network at the Horohoro border post, marking a major step in strengthening digital connectivity and regional integration across East Africa. Speaking during the launch, Tanzania's Minister for.
